Sahel: jihadists are advancing again. What to do?

January 13 this year on the initiative of the President of France, E. Macron, in the city of Pau (France), a summit was held of the countries of the intergovernmental organization G-5 Sahel, created in 2014, which includes Burkina Faso, Mauritania, Mali, Niger, Chad. The summit aroused wide interest in African countries and in Europe, primarily in France. It is in the G-5 Sahel countries that the most large-scale terrorist operations are launched; it is to these countries that France and the EU provide wide support in their resistance to the threats of terrorism and organized transnational crime. Ursula von der Leyen's visit to Ethiopia: goals and outcomes

Ursula von der Leyen assumed the post of the head of the European Commission on December 1, 2019, and on December 7, 2019 made her first working trip to Africa, namely to Ethiopia. This choice was a surprise for many, but it was made personally by the new head of the most important EU body, and this is far from accidental. Ethiopia is a key partner for the EU in the region. In addition, a country with a population of more than 112 million people is an important and growing export market for the EU (over 300 European companies are already present there). European analysts also point out that Ethiopia could become a key partner in the future for the EU to stop the flow of economic migrants from Africa to Europe. Now the country is preparing for the general election in May 2020. Read more

Guinea-Bissau 2019 Presidential Election

On November 24, 2019, the first round of the presidential election was held in Guinea-Bissau. In the second round, candidates from the African Independence Party of Guinea and Cape Verde (PAIGC) - Domingos Simoins Pereira and from the opposition party "Movement Democratic Alternative G-15" (DDA) - Umar Sisku Embalo. Both are former prime ministers of the country in 2014–2015 and 2016–2018. Interestingly, two more former heads of government participated in the elections - Carlos Junior Gomes and Basir Jah. Thus, of the 12 participants in the presidential race, at least a few were experienced politicians who held high party and government posts over the years. Read more

APDR Presidential Election

Former Prime Minister of the Algerian People's Democratic Republic (APDR) Abdelmajid Tebbun won the first round of the presidential election on December 12, 2019. The politician secured the support of 58.13% of the voters. Thus, a second round of elections was not needed. On December 13, 2019, the Algerian election commission announced the victory of Abdelmajid Tebbun. Read more

33rd African Union Heads of State and Government Conference on conflict resolution

February 9-10 this year in the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa, the 33rd Conference of the Heads of State and Government of the African Union (AU), the organization's highest body, was held.

The AU summits have long since abandoned the solemn format characteristic of events of this kind, and have turned into a working organism for determining, coordinating and implementing decisions on the most significant problems of the development of the continent and its role in international affairs. This time, the theme of the summit - "silencing weapons: creating favorable conditions for development" - reflected the most pressing concerns and concerns of African countries and peoples. Legislative Election 2020 on Comoros: Federalism and Centralization

In two rounds - on January 19 and February 23, 2020, parliamentary elections were held in the Union of the Comoros (UC). The vast majority of seats in the Assembly of the JCE, the country's highest legislative body, received the Union for the renewal of Comoros (Convention pour le renouveau des Comores, CRC), the party of incumbent President Azalee Assumani, re-elected in 2019 for a five-year term. The results of the current elections are the logical result of a long-term tense socio-political process in the archipelago: this is a series of military coups and authoritarian regimes, outbreaks of separatism, several constitutions, reformatting of FIRCO (Federal Islamic Republic of Comoros) into the North Kazakhstan region, and unsuccessful attempts to fix the status quo. Read more
